District Governor is Given
Ticket to International
Meet in Vienna

MEETING IS SUCCESS

Stanley Lewis Delivers
Excellent Address

Meeker Terwilliger, local attorney, governor of the 22nd district of Rotary International, was highly honored when he was awarded a round-trip ticket to the Rotary International convention to be held in Vienna, Austria, from June 22 to June 26, 1931, by Rotarians of his district at a conference in Portsmouth which ended Tuesday afternoon.

The presentation of appreciation was made by a member of the Portsmouth club representing the district.

Those from Circleville who attended the conference were besides Terwilliger, H. G. Stevenson, C. E. Groce, S. G. Rader, Charles H. May, Stanley Lewis, George P. Foreman, Ed. Daley, Harley B. Colwell, Walter H. Nelson and Paul Johnson.

The district conference which began Monday morning was one of the best conducted affairs the 22nd district has ever engaged in and much credit was given to Terwilliger who swung the gavel during the conference. It was estimated that more than 1,000 out-of-town persons attended the two-day meet with 476 Rotarians registered. Of the 46 clubs represented in Terwilliger's district, 45 were represented at the conference. In his report of his activities to the conference the district governor told of visits to each of the 46 clubs during his year's regime.

LEWIS IS SPEAKER
Stanley Lewis, county agent and a member of the local club, gave one of the finest talks of the conference. Rotarians, say, discussing the value of Rotary to the community. His talk was received with a rousing applause.

Succeeding Terwilliger as district governor is Frank B. Pauly of Middletown. Pauly, postmaster, had no opposition to the office, just as Terwilliger had none last year at his election.

Lima Officials Are Accused of Forgery, Bribery

COLUMBUS, O., April 15.—Forgery and bribery accusations were made against two street department employees in Lima by State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy today following a special examination of the city's records.

Herman Geiser, superintendent of the department, and Richard Davis, payroll clerk, were charged with having mishandled $8,434.95 of the city's money in a report made public by the auditor.

The report charges Geiser and Davis with illegally receiving $4,403.40 in truck rentals, with converting $2,431.55 in forged payroll checks and improperly retained collections to their own use, and with accepting $1600 in bribes for the use of a city-owned truck which was listed in street department records as being the property of Davis' father.

REPAID AMOUNT
As filed by State Examiner C. F. Rieser and Assistant Examiner Henry W. Frillman after an examination covering a period from April 1, 1928 to March 31, 1931, the report said that Geiser and Davis have admitted the alleged forgeries and that upon demand they paid that amount -- $2,431.55 -- back into the city treasury.

Davis and Geiser have verified the amounts and endorsements of the alleged forged checks, admitting that the money was converted to their own use, the report given to the auditor said.

"The forged check 'enterprise' was an agreement between Herman Geiser and Richard Davis on an equal division for all the endorsements on these checks, cashing same, and dividing with Herman Geiser," the report said.

It added that "Davis admitted forging names of various employees to the backs of checks."

STATEMENTS DIFFER
Arthur Stehle, who allegedly paid $50 a month rental to Geiser for a truck which was said to have been listed as the property of Davis' father, O. G. Davis, is accused of having made contradictory statements about the alleged payment.

Stehle signed two affidavits, one denying making the payments and another admitting paying the sum, the report said.

"These two conflicting affidavits plainly and clearly constitute a charge of perjury," examiners said. "Geiser had no interest whatever in the ownership of this truck and the payment of $50 a month smacks quite seriously of bribery," the report added. "There could be no other reason for Mr. Stehle to make this purported donation to Geiser other than for Geiser to use his influence and authority to use the Stehle truck."

HAD CHICKENS, HELD TO JURY

Omer Seiner Reads Story of Arrest, Identifies Chickens in Court.

Charles Harris of E. Ohio-st. was bound over to the grand jury under $200 bond when he pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing chickens before Mayor B. T. Hedges Wednesday morning. Harris will be committed to the county jail pending grand jury action.

He was arrested at 1:30 a. m. Tuesday by Officers Fred Fitzpatrick and John Seal while he was carrying six Plymouth Rock chickens in a sack. He said he had purchased them on the Kingston-pk.

Police doubted his story and traveled over several localities Tuesday in an effort to learn who had lost chickens. Omer Seiner of the Island-rd, saw the story of Harris' arrest in Tuesday's Herald and went to police headquarters where he identified the chickens as his.

He told police that his chickens had holes in the webs of their feet and when police investigated found the marks to be present. Seiner told police he had been missing chickens frequently in the past few weeks and his statement corroborates the story of police that Harris has been identified as the person who has been selling Plymouth Rock chickens in the city recently.

Sabin, New York clubwoman, the feminine group has voiced a series of vigorous demands for support of their drive to take the dry laws out of the constitution and off the federal statute books. MARINES FIGHT THREE FORCES IN SO. AMERICA

Censorship is Placed on Country by Secretary of State Stimson Today

REPORTS DIFFERENT

Claim Three Bandits Concentrating Troops

WASHINGTON, April 15.—A strict censorship placed on the Navy by secretary of state Stimson continued today to obscure the situation near Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, where one marine officer, Capt. Harlan Peffley, is known to have been killed by outlaws, and an undetermined number of others yet unidentified, reported dead or missing.

Both the state and the navy departments continued skeptical of dispatches being received from marine headquarters at Managua, from Bluefields and Puerto Cabezas, concerning the reported activities of three notorious Nicaraguan bandits, Sandino, Blandon and Pedro, who are said to be converging on Puerto Cabezas and Logtown.

DARRAH ALIVE

Lieut. Clyde R. Darrah, who went to the relief of Peffley, was known to be alive yesterday although surrounded near Logtown, and with a bandit force between his position and Puerto Cabezas. Darrah was reported in telephonic communication with Capt. John G. Wood, marine corps, of Santa Cruz, Calif., at Bluefields.

This much appears to be definite in the confused picture.

The gunboat Asheville is at Puerto Cabezas to protect about 300 American citizens in that port, and its landing party is patrolling the city, and the national guard is advancing on the outlaw bands. A bandit force has succeeded in cutting the line of communication of the national guard some thirteen kilometers from Puerto Cabezas toward Logtown.

Maj. John Marston, marine corps, commander of the eastern District of the native guardia at Puerto Cabezas, reported that Capt. Wood, and Lieut. Tony Simmer, of Eastport, Md., with four enlisted guardia, had left Puerto Cabezas to reinforce Darrah, who had two engagements with Blandon's forces (75 men this report said) on the 13th. One Guardia was reported wounded. Pandron was reported coming down the Co Co river "in force" while Blandon was said to be at a place called Snaki. These reports came from marine aviators who flew over to drop ammunition, it was indicated.

TOWN SURROUNDED

Heavily armed forces were reported surrounding the town and neighboring farms, while marines and bluejackets from the U. S. S. Asheville were entrenched awaiting a threatened rebel attack.

The messages indicated the entire eastern area of Nicaragua was in revolt, the rebels being determined to "take Puerto Cabezas or die."

Various reports of American casualties were received here during the day. One unconfirmed report said an entire company of marines under Lieutenant Wood was wiped out yesterday at Wawa-boom, near Puerto Cabezas.

COLUMBUS, O., April 15.—Plans are being drawn to carry the battle for retention of prohibition into the public schools of Ohio in "lessons" illustrating the harmful effects of alcohol on the human body. It was announced here today.

Although John L. Clifton, state director of education has not been consulted on the proposal, S. E. McNaught, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League believes there will be no objection to the plan "because it is merely one for the truthful dissemination of the truth about alcohol and its results."

SPANISH ROYAL FAMILY LEAVES NATION BEHIND

Deposed King's Family Scatters and Will Probably Meet at London

REPUBLIC IS POWER

Bourbon Dynasty at Last Comes to An End

MADRID, April 15.—The royal family of Spain, exiled from its native land as the long-expected republic swept aside the Bourbon dynasty, departed by different routes from Madrid today to its secret rendezvous in a foreign country.

While Madrid and other Spanish cities carried on night-long rejoicing, cheering the republic and provisional President Alcala Zamora, Alfonso XIII boarded the warship Principe Alfonso at Cartagena and shortly after 5 a. m. sailed away to an unrevealed destination.

GO TO FRONTIER

Queen Victoria, accompanied by the Prince of the Asturias, the Infante Don Jaime, and the Princesses Beatrice and Cristina, left Madrid at 8:40 a. m. They were secretly driven to Villalba, near Madrid, where they boarded a train bound for the French frontier shortly before 11 a. m.

A detachment of civil guards protected the queen and her children. The detour to Villalba was made by car to enable the royal party to avoid the dense throngs at the Madrid railroad terminal where the arrival of Major Ramon Franco, ace airman and refugee ex-volt leader, was anticipated.

Presumably the royal refugees, reported well supplied with financial resources, will eventually gather in London. Although information on this point was meagre, it was indicated here that the Queen would cross over into France, proceed to Paris, while the Prince Alfonso, may land the day monarch at Marseilles.

GREET REFUGEES

As the royal family departed the Central railroad station was packed with thousands of republicans who were on hand to greet the expected arrival of political refugees pouring in on special trains from the French border. Should the Queen and her children have chosen this route out of Spain, they would have to pass this incoming Republican crowd.

The deposed Bourbon head, after abdicating a throne held by his ancestors for 1,000 years and witnessing the swift governmental change that made Spain a republic, left his palace quickly by a side door. In taking fond leave of his family, he said:

"Well, I'm going, but some day I shall return."

Political News

From Columbus

COLUMBUS.—In recesses until May 11 to permit its special taxation committee to formulate a program, the eighty ninth general assembly has completed the point of view but the consensus of opinion among newspaper observers seems to be that it merits commendation for having refrained from enacting so many of the total of nearly 1000 measures proposed. For this much credit is given to the menacing shadow of Governor White's veto ax.

Editorial comments include this from the independent Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Less than half a dozen bills of outstanding importance -- in all the more than 160 minor of personal measures going through without serious opposition."

And the Cincinnati Enquirer remarks: "The assembly did not do much work in the light of the number of bills passed, which, in such a legislature, is perhaps a blessing. The fewer measures written into the statute books, the less chance of going astray into the ridiculous. It is to be noted once more that virtually none of the more important matters, and particularly those affecting the welfare of cities, received intelligent treatment and virtually all were killed."

To this the Columbus Citizen adds: "All in all, considering what the legislature might have done during the last 13 weeks, it is probable that the state is better off today than might have been expected. Among the 160 odd bills passed by both houses there are few that are absolutely pernicious. There may be some that are undesirable, and a good many that are unnecessary, but Governor White has a workable veto pen and we rather expect to see him use it freely. The Republican leadership, especially in the house, has been poor, and will be a danger point in May."

Thus do leading newspapers appraise the record of the two houses, controlled by Republican majorities which refused to permit the Democratic minority to have an equal voice in determining the program and thereby assumed party responsibility for the results.

Chief among the measures advocated by Governor George White and put through the legislature, in spite of the fact that the administration had a Republican majority to overcome, are:

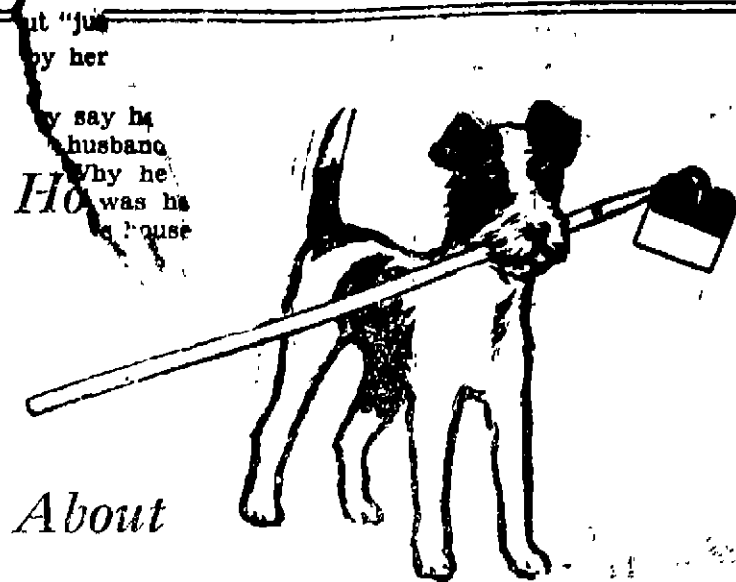

The welfare department's prison parole reform proposals including repeal of the Norwood law, allowance of time off for good behavior, making eligible for parole all who have served 15 years, except for murder, and establishment of a clemency board of four members in place of the present two-member board.

The resolution authorizing the governor to appoint a commission to investigate the feasibility of unemployment insurance.

The bill placing the public employees' section of the workmen's compensation law on an actuarial basis, a remedy that the previous Cooper legislature refused to endorse.

Emergency relief appropriations of $50,000 for needy school children and $80,000 for drought sufferers.

The legislators saw fit to disregard Governor White's admonition in his first message to them

Can't PLAY
Can't REST
—child needs Castoria

WHEN a child is fretful and irritable, seems distressed and uncomfortable, can't play, can't sleep, it is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong. Right here is where Castoria fits into a child's scheme—the very purpose for which it was formulated years ago! A few drops and the condition which caused the trouble is righted; comfort quickly brings restful sleep.

Nothing can take the place of Castoria for children; it's perfectly harmless, yet always effective. For the protection of your we one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an every-day aid. That part of an iceberg that is visible is impressive. Yet 8/9 of its volume is hidden.

You do not see the largest portion of your water company's system—the reservoirs, wells, purifying equipment, the vast network of underground mains. Faucets and hydrants are the visible 1/9 of your water system. Yet it is the whole (not the part) that makes possible a water service which safeguards health and protects against fire.

Advantages of Careers
A career is a happy escape for men who are not particularly gifted in making money and women who are not particularly enthusiastic over making beds. A career is useful, as it is customary to assume that everything must be sacrificed for it, which permits you to rise superior to such mundane affairs as golf and bridge and preserving. Career people also, as a rule, are excused from dancing; if not immediately, certainly after the first dance.

If a worthy movement is in progress, ordinary people are asked to give their money. But all career people are expected to do is to contribute their talents.

When career people entertain, their guests do not come for the food. They could hardly expect a career woman to spend a morning in market thumping melons, to test their ripeness or going from stall to stall to find the freshest lima beans. And surely no one would criticize the dust and cobwebs in a living room if the master of the house appears and, with finger to lip, whispers: "Sh-h-h-h!" She is writing an ode to a moon-beam. How is it possible to conceive of a man who is hard at work painting a masterpiece taking time off to wash his motor car? Or a national committee woman counting in the laundry?

An even more practical value of a career is the saving it entails upon such items as pressing, shoe-shining, haircuts, and clothes in general. Career women need not be in style. They have only to affect a few garments that hang loosely from the shoulders and extend downward in graceful folds. Clothes that express the personality, so essential to career people, may be had at any bargain sale and are good for years.

Absent-mindedness in the case of career people, may, and frequently does, become a virtue. A career man who invariably forgets to surrender his claim check at the station from the very fact gives promise of great accomplishment. Furthermore, such a person is likely to be relieved of the petty responsibilities that fall to the lot of lesser men.

Sometimes career people become famous. But even if they do not, they save themselves a great deal of worry and acquire many friends, who are afraid to drop them for fear the career people may make good in the end.

"Ole Swimm' Hole"
THEY tell him they would like to take him out to the old swimming hole they used as boys. He replies no thank you, that he knows something about swimming holes. But they say this one is quite different from all the others, that it is quite as comfortable as a private pool.

The water? Why, it is so clear you can see straight to the bottom. And there is a nice shelving beach, with clean, firm sand, and another place where the bank goes straight down and you can dive right off into 10 feet of water. And then there are nice tree trunks cut off at a level with the water to which you can swim and rest. In fact, it would appear that in this instance nature had provided a perfect swimming hole.

So he says very well, then he will go with them and see this wonderful place. They approach the swimming hole by a path that has not stood up so well for the last 20 years. The smooth, pebbly bank on which they are to undress has grown up considerably in briars. Evidently the boys of this generation do not use the old hole very much, they say. He takes off his clothes and enters the water by way of "the nice sandy bottom." He remarks that it feels very much like mud to him. They explain that it must have got that way recently and suggest his trying the diving place. So he goes to that end and, by way of precaution, takes a shallow dive. It is a wise precaution. He comes up with two handfuls of mud. He looks at his body, which appears a good rich amber color under the water.

They say that something must have happened to the old swimming hole in the last 20 years. It seems to be drying up, as it is much smaller than when they were boys and the water is no longer clear.

But he only smiles in a superior way. He says that all swimming holes are like that. They need not bother to explain. He knew what it would be before he came.

THE FASCINATION OF BAD EXAMPLES

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST" By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

"Bim" Martin, young newspaper reporter and her fiancé, Walter Vance, assistant police chief, are baffled by the murder of Baroness von Wiese at Eagle's Nest and the theft of her jewels. The outstanding suspects are the butler, who denies receiving a note from the Baroness, her maid with whom she quarreled, and Mary Frost, whose shawl was wrapped around the body. Mary left the party with her husband, Ted, returning alone, later for the shawl. According to the maid, Laura Allan had borrowed it. Laura claims she saw Mary enter the garden wearing the shawl. Bim feels that Mary is shielding Ted who flirted with the Baroness. A stone from a man's ring is found in the garden.

CHAPTER XIX.

THE young man placed a slender, temperamental-looking hand, badly stained with nicotine, upon either side of Bim's typewriter, and continued to grin down at her in the friendliest, most comradely way imaginable.

He was almost too handsome, she decided in that instant of confused surprise. His features were regular and clear-cut, and there was a suggestion of sideburns to point up his profile. He had tossed down his hat and his hair was sleek and shining, like Ted Frost's, but there would, she saw, be a wave in it if he were inclined to allow it. Still there was nothing really of the movie-idol about him; a certain careless unself-consciousness and a singularly alert intelligence saved him from this.

"Well!" Bim brought out after a rather long moment of staring. He laughed and offered to shake hands. "Hi, Carey," he announced. "Greetings, sobster."

"Not—not Carl Carey?" Her hand went limp in his as she considered this possibility, and he laughed again.

Diplomacy Plus

"The same Carl Carey—New York Planet—at your service." He made a low bow and winked in a manner that made her laugh as she suddenly lost her awe of this metropolitan press star. "All of which," he continued, "goes to show that it's an ill wind—and so on. For, says I to myself when I drew this von Wiese mess for assignment, 'well, me!' But now that I've seen the town and its citizens—some of them—I don't care if I never get back to Park Row."

Bim did not pretend to misunderstand him. There was an easy good-fellowship about young Carey which delighted her and his gaiety was infectious. She found her spirits soaring.

"Looked over my shoulder. Nice of you to call on me and I. We're the Bimmers, you know."

"I'm glad to hear that," he replied, smiling back at him. "The next goes to press as soon as Dad gets back and I've got to finish my copy. I don't suppose you'd want?" She added a shade wistfully.

"You don't? Wrong, baby. Where do I park myself?"

The young man continued to grin at Bim in the friendliest way imaginable.

She motioned him to old Tom's creaky swivel chair and turned back to her typewriter. It was not so easy to write now, however, with his amused eyes watching and her glad when old Tom returned and insisted upon showing Carey the presses, droning away all the while about the beauty and wonders of Kingdiffe and the calamity which had befallen the town.

In the Maple Leaf Tea Room with a softly shaded light between herself and Carey, Bim told him about the murder, relating, however, only that part of the story which would appear in the Banner. But this appeared to be enough to set him speculating. He took from his pocket a roll of copy paper and a pencil and wrote out a list of names which he headed "suspects."

"But," Bim objected, "You've got everybody down—everybody that was at the dinner last night excepting myself—and that's silly."

"Wrong again, baby. You're too close to it to get the correct slant. I don't know any of these people and so I can suspect them all."

"Still it's terrible to go on the theory that everyone is guilty until proved innocent."

"Why terrible? Let's see now—here's the Hardys and the Barons—here's pretty well out of it, for the moment anyway. We'll cross them off the list. Well, then, there's Frost. Used to hang around Broadway a lot; a fast stepper. Who's he running with now?"

No Other Woman

"Of all the outrageous questions! Mr. Frost doesn't run with anyone. Mr. Carey. He has a perfectly wonderful wife."

"What's that got to do with it? We'll put an X down here after his name; that means a gal. You say he's on good terms with his wife?" Carey asked suggestively.

"Are you implying for one instant, Mr. Carey, that Ted wanted to get Mary Frost out of the way? Bim flung this across the tea cups, hot with anger.

"Why all the shouting? Somebody took a shot at Mary Frost's shawl, seems as though. Why the commotion? What do you know? Better tell or papa spank."

She said, "I don't know anything," in a dejected, quiet way. The possibility he had suggested was, of course, utterly wild; yet she was acquainted with Ted and Mary Frost—one like Carey or

Pneumonia Attacks When Body Is Weak

Good Health Is Our Only Assurance of Resistance to This Devastating Disease, Says Dr. Copeland, Pointing Out the Value of Keeping the Body at Par

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

OF all the acute infectious diseases, pneumonia has always been most feared. It is more common and more fatal than any other infectious disease. It is as widespread in its devastating career as tuberculosis.

Pneumonia differs from other infectious diseases in that one attack does not give immunity to a second attack. In fact, it seems to work the other way. Recurrence is more common in pneumonia than in any other acute disease.

The ailment is found in all climates, in tropical as well as cold countries. Its severity varies in different countries. Pneumonia is more virulent in the United States than it is in England, for instance. This is believed by some authorities to be due in part, at least, to our custom of living and working in dry and overheated rooms.

The disease is caused by a germ called the "pneumococcus." There are four different types of this germ. They differ in their mode of attack and in the severity of the disease. The germ enters the body through the nose or mouth. This germ is found in the atmosphere and in much of the dust with which we come in contact.

For some reason, not yet clearly understood, not all persons are stricken with pneumonia. The disease manifests itself when the body has become weakened and rendered susceptible to infection.

Good health is our only assurance of resistance to this disease. Weakening diseases lower the body resistance and render it liable to pneumonia. That is why this complication is particularly common after an attack of influenza. The form of pneumonia that follows a siege of influenza is often very dangerous. Chronic alcoholics are particularly prone to this disease. Alcohol has special powers in lessening the body resistance to the infection. In such cases convalescence is often a difficult and stormy one.

The disease may follow exposure to cold, injury, undernourishment, fatigue, overexertion or local irritation. It is often a complication of measles, whooping cough, typhoid fever and other diseases.

It should be remembered that sturdy, healthy individuals, who abuse their good health, may be stricken by pneumonia. Anything that tends to reduce the strength of the body increases the liability to pneumonia.

Loss of sleep, overwork, worry, poor food, lack of fresh air, alcohol and exposure to cold should be avoided. This is particularly important for the very young and the aged.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Fredric March, who is being hailed as the newest "weakness" of feminine film fans, will be seen at the Cliftona Theatre again in a picture that gives him a chance to display romantic and comedy talents which he has hitherto held in abeyance because of the requirements of his roles.

The picture is "The Royal Family of Broadway." Paramount's filmization of the celebrated stage play, "The Royal Family" which smashed the records of Broadway a season ago and which has since had great success in stock company and touring productions throughout America.

"The Royal Family of Broadway" deals with the doings of a family of actors who have been leaders in their craft for generation after generation. This clan of great actors, known in the play as the Cavendishes, are seen in a clever presentation of their lives at home where the daily and hourly topics of conversation is the stage which they have so long and so gloriously dominated.

AT THE GRAND

War is not all mud, trenches, battles and barages for the soldier who finds himself plucked from a peaceful occupation and planted on the frontlines.

"A Soldier's Plaything," the Warner Brothers and Vitaphone comedy-drama which comes to the Grand Theatre on Wednesday depicts some of the romantic and humorous things that befell American doughboys who donned the khaki and marched bravely into the fight.

Experience is the father of wisdom and memory the mother.

Relieved After Years of Suffering

"I cannot remember when I had a well day or a restful night's sleep until I began taking MALVA," says Mary B. Birnbryer, member of a prominent Cincinnati family. "I was nervous, restless, and suffered dreadfully from stomach pains, sluggishness, lost appetite, and sleeplessness. My skin was also constantly dark and greasy. Now after taking just a few bottles of this wonderful new medicine, my friends say that my complexion could not be better and I know that I am in better health than ever before in my life."—Mary B. King Baseball Is Back On Throne

NEW YORK, April 15.—Of course the man has a remarkable physique, a natural flair for the thing, and undoubtedly is whistled about he is one of the greatest ballplayers of all time. But what we admitted most today about Babe Ruth was his unquenchable thirst for the game. Just a few hours after they kicked the King of Spain off his throne and it looked dismal enough for all royalty, this emperor of baseball popped out of the Yankee dugout and upheld the ancient traditions of his house so nobly that they still seemed left an argument or two on behalf of the divine right of kings. When he picked up his royal scepter and stride to the plate before those 70,000 opening day fans, it was not difficult to imagine every fan was a tree and here we were right out in the latest primeval with the great Babe monarch of all he surveyed.

Then when he cracked that homer No. one, vintage 1931, as the Yanks beat the Boston Red Sox 6 to 3, it appeared certain he could wrap about him his royal robes of purple and quite safely dust off the old ermine for many years to come.

They said his legs had gone republican and that faint rumors of revolt had been heard from his knees down. Then, too, a revolutionary bulge was reported near his belt line and his eyes, it was understood, had a distinct tinge of red. Indeed, dispatches from the training camp sector indicated it was high time to call out the marines and do some situation-well-in-hand business. But 37-year-old George answered with a king's edict in stealing a base in the first inning.

But age will tell! Old John Pius Quinn became decrepit early in the afternoon and two other fellows who followed him were

COWS ON PASTURE NEEDS GRAINS TOO

Even though the milking herd is on excellent pasture, it is necessary to feed grain if the best results are to be obtained states C. L. Blackman, extension specialist in animal husbandry at the Ohio State University.

Sometimes he says, the amount of grain need not be as large as when the cows are in the barn, but very often the grain allowance should be the same. The most practical method of providing a ration for dairy cattle is to determine the kind of ration necessary and supply this to the entire milking herd.

If a certain cow has a tendency to become fat and decrease in milk production too early, he points out, it is well to add a little extra high protein feed to her ration. This tends to stimulate milk production rather than fat accumulation.

If another cow milking heavily, has a tendency to get thin, it is well to add extra corn and oats or other high carbohydrate feeds to her ration. It is not practical to make a separate grain mixture for each cow in the herd.

When alfalfa, sweet clover, soybean hay, or pasture is fed with or without silage, Blackman believes good results may be obtained by feeding a grain mixture consisting of 300 pounds of corn or corn-and-cob meal or hominy or barley, 200 pounds ground oats, 100 pounds wheat bran, 50 pounds of cotton seed meal and 50 pounds of linseed oil meal or soybean meal. Another good ration contains 200 pounds of corn or corn-and-cob meal or hominy or barley, 100 pounds of ground oats, 100 pounds of wheat bran, 50 pounds of gluten feed and 50 pounds of cottonseed meal or oil meal.

FREEMAN OUT AS CHAMPION

Young Jack Thompson Takes Title For Second Time By Cleveland's Defeat.

CLEVELAND, O., April 15.—Jack Thompson of Oakland, Calif., today held the distinction of being one of the few "two time" champions in ring history by virtue of his victory over the former Tommy Freeman, Cleveland, last night.

The jinx that has bailed the four welterweight champions settled in Freeman's left eye and the freshly-haired Clevelander passed his title back to the colored boy from whom he won it last September.

Because his left eye was badly battered, Freeman could not come out for the twelfth round and Referee Davis, upon the advice of Freeman's seconds, walked over and raised Thompson's hand.

Thompson was leaning on points when the old champion resigned, but there was not much doubt that the 147-pound laurels would have gone to Jack when the fifteen rounds were over.

Thompson began working on Freeman's eye in the fifth round, when he crossed a right hand that started the blood flowing and also started the eye to swell. By the seventh round, the eye was swollen tight by a vicious right uppercut, a punch for which Thompson is famous.

Freeman came back, however, and held the colored boy about even in the eighth his best round. He sent Thompson reeling with a right to the jaw and had the colored boy in a bad way. Thompson took a real trouncing in this round with the title-holder banging away with both hands.

In the eleventh Jack again started working on Freeman's eyes with the result he was unable to appear for the following round.

Thompson was presented with the gold belt awarded by the N. B. A., through its President Gen. John V. Cherni, who announced the association would recognize Thompson as the champion.

The bout was attended by 8,716, which broke the 1927 record of 8,123.

DOC McMILLEN READY FOR YEAR

LONDON, O.—William (Doc) McMillen, noted London horse trainer, is preparing for the advent of the barrier plan of harness horse racing in Ohio.

Confident that the barrier plan will soon come to Ohio to stay, McMillen is constructing a barrier on the half-mile track of the Madison Co. Fair Grounds where he is training his stable and will use it in all of his track work this spring.

The new device is sure to score with the fans McMillen believes, and in time will come to be regarded as an essential part of racing equipment.

Old Stars Have Day In Openers

BY LES CONKLIN
NEW YORK, April 15.—Baseball fans eagerly scanning the first official box scores of the season today for new idols to acclaim found opening day honors annexed by four old reliables—Chuck Klein, Charley Root, Robert Moses Grove and G. H. Ruth himself.

Klein, who won the National League home run crown in 1929, only to relinquish the diadem to Jack Wilson last year, got off to a running start in the 1931 derby by propelling two balls out of the park. The Philly outfielder didn't sign a contract until last week and his impressive start without benefit of much spring practice probably is causing other batsmen to ponder long and deeply today on the alleged advantages of the spring training camp grind.

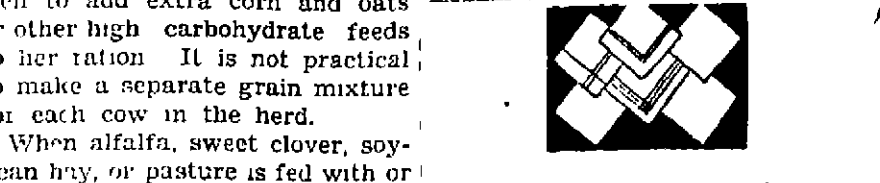

The inaugural day feats of Root, Grove and Ruth gave a rosy tint to the pennant prospects of their respective clubs. Root's injury late last season cost the Cubs the National League pen-

Double your oil mileage

by using Sterling the Thousand Mile Oil

if it were possible to hitch a speedometer direct to your crankcase, you could then more accurately measure the mileage of the oil you use.

However, you have the statements of reliable oil producers who have made innumerable tests with their oils. Their statements have been accepted as authentic.

In using the general run of motor oils, you are assured that your oil should be changed every 1,000 miles—this is their safety limit.

Going to the high quality of crude used in the production of Sterling Oil, and the more efficient use of it, you can easily bring it. Sterling mileage is based on a car traveling at 1500 miles—just what the average oil.

When you usually pay 10¢ for a quart of oil, you only have to pay 5¢ for a quart of Sterling. You only have to change it once.

Send for our little booklet, "Smashing the 1,000 Mile Rule."

CO-OP SHOWS NICE GAINS

The Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association handled 40 decks of live stock last month, which was an increase of 4 decks over the same month one year ago, said Harry J. Briggs, manager, in presenting his report to the Livestock Directors, Saturday evening, March 11th.

The livestock sales amounted to $51,377.54. The volume consisted of 1589 hogs; 339 finished cattle; 119 veal calves; and 180 sheep. Approximately eighty per cent of the cooperative sales were made through the organization, direct from the producer to the packers.

In spite of a decreased livestock population, the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association has consistently increased its livestock marketing volume over corresponding months of one year ago.

The livestock volume for last week was comprised of 173 finished cattle, 637 hogs; 62 veal calves and 41 sheep, a total of 913 head. This is the largest volume handled throughout the week in the history of the Association during the period of March, April and May. 42 of the 62 veal calves consigned last Saturday topped the market, showing the producers interest in finishing his veal calves according to market requirements.

Livestock producers are cognizant of the fact that the cooperative service reflects not only marketing counsel and information on marketing requirements, but also reflects to the producer the greatest net return.

In view of the economic conditions confronting the farmer, there certainly was never a more opportune time for the general livestock farmer to consign his livestock cooperatively and contribute a volume through which he may obtain greater bargaining power and more economic returns in the hands of his own cooperative association.

NOTICE OFFELLOWS You are cordially invited to attend an important meeting at the lodge room Friday evening, April 17. Chicken and noodles promptly at 7 o'clock.
